A research, documentation and information centre

Nordiska Afrikainstitutet (The Nordic Africa Institute) in Uppsala, founded in 1962 and jointly financed by the Nordic countries, is a research, documentation and information centre on modern Africa for the Nordic countries. It promotes research and studies on Africa in the Nordic countries and co-operation between African and Nordic researchers. It also disseminates information about current African issues through publications, seminars, conferences and various policy activities. The Nordic Africa Institute supports studies on Africa in the Nordic countries and Africa through its scholarships and guest researchers' programmes.

The Institute regularly provides background information and analyses based on research results and special studies. The aim is to inform policy decisions on current African issues in the Nordic countries. Conferences are also held, which are aimed at policy-makers, NGOs and the media both in Africa and in the Nordic countries. Activities in the past year have focused on the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD), the African Union, African Regional Co-operation, the democratic development in newly liberated states, documenting the recent past particularly with regard to the liberation struggles in Southern Africa, and the very volatile situation in Central Africa. West Africa has also increasingly come into focus in the past year.

A list of the Institute's ongoing research programmes can be found on the back cover of this catalogue. More information about the different activities, grants, library services and publications is available on the Institute's website www.nai.uu.se

Poverty, Income Distribution and Labour Markets in Ethiopia

Ethiopia is one of the poorest countries in the world with a per capita income of just above US$100. With such a low average income, poverty is of course widespread, so understanding the causes of poverty is of utmost importance, but until recently very little household-data has been available. This study deals with many aspects of poverty and income-distribution in Ethiopia, providing a wealth of information on household-income and its determinants. Arne Bigsten is Professor of Development Economics at the Gothenburg University. Bereket Kebede has a BA in economics from Addis Ababa University and MSc and DPhil degrees from Oxford University. He is currently lecturing at the School of Development Studies, University of East Anglia. Abebe Shimeles received a BA from Addis Ababa University and an MA from the Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi.

Votes, Money and Violence

Political Parties and Elections in Sub-Saharan Africa

Following the (re-)introduction of multiparty systems in Africa in the early 1990s, third and fourth elections in Africa's new democracies and hybrid regimes are now being seen. Although there is a large and growing literature on democracy and elections in Africa, parties and party systems have hitherto not been the focus of research, which may be surprising given their central role in a liberal democracy. Research on political parties and party systems in Africa is still in its infancy.

Various contributions in this volume examine the African parties and party systems with their particular features of weak organisation, informal relationships dominated by 'big men' and clientelism within a neopatrimonial setting. Others raise the crucial question of representation in relation to ethnicity, civil society and gender. Finally, there are chapters which focus on the neglected area of electoral violence, and the moral role of money and vote buying is scrutinized through a case study.

Africa, Regional Coopera- tion and the World Market Socio-Economic Strategies in Times of Global Trade Regimes

Discussion Paper 31

Under the regime of the World
Trade Organisation (WTO),

local and regional policies are increasingly determined by global factors. Bi- and multilateral trade relations between external actors and individual African states or regional blocs are becoming ever more decisive. This is also true of the more recently negotiated Economic Partnership Agreements (EPAs) in the post-Lomé era of EU-African relations. In light of such trends the question of coherence between "trade as aid" and other areas of development strategy and cooperation remains to be answered. The contributions to this Discussion Paper reflect upon related matters of socio-economically viable strategies seeking to reconcile the global and the regional in an African perspective.

Tales of the Nation

Feminist Nationalism or Patriotic History? Defining National History and Identity in Zimbabwe

Research Report No. 132 (E)

This research report focuses on how versions of the country's liberation war history have become a site of struggle over the definition of Zimbabwean national identity. The study takes a cross-disciplinary approach to the issue by 'mapping out' the imaginary field of Zimbabwean nationalism. This approach opens up the possibility of cross-reading the political discourses of the President and the ruling party ZANU (PF) with opposing voices such as those in the works of the author Yvonne Vera. This cross-reading shows how Vera's novels and the political discourses participate in the struggle over Zimbabwean national identity by offering different versions of the nation's history in the form of 'patriotic history', 'feminist nationalism', or narratives of difference.

State Recognition of Traditional Authority in Mozambique

The Nexus of Community Representation and State Assistance

Discussion Paper 28 (E)

How should the Mozambican traditional leaders' double role as community representatives and state assistants be captured? This discussion paper addresses some fundamental questions pertaining to the 2002 official recognition of traditional leaders as community authorities. After a brief history of the changing role of, and faith in, traditional authorities as a basis for understanding the importance of their recent official recognition, the paper outlines the key objectives of the Decree 15/2000 that officially recognises community authorities. Some of the key concepts underpinning the Decree are then critically assessed. The paper concludes by pointing out some unintended consequences of these reified notions for kin-based forms of community authority and especially for the ideal of community participation.

The Security-Development Nexus

Expressions of Sovereignty and Securitization in Southern Africa

The link between security and development has been rediscovered after 9/11 by a broad range of scholars.

Focussing on Southern Africa, the Security-Development Nexus shows that the much debated linkage is by no means a recent invention. Rather, the security/development linkage has been an important element of the state policies of colonial as well as post-colonial regimes during the Cold War, and it seems to be prospering in new configurations under the present wave of democratic transitions. Contributors focus on a variety of contexts from South Africa, Mozambique, and Namibia, to Zimbabwe and Democratic Congo; they explore the nexus and our understanding of security and development through the prism of peace-keeping interventions, community policing, human rights, gender, land contests, squatters, nation and state-building, social movements, DDR programmes and the different trajectories democratization has taken in different parts of the region.

Lars Buur and Finn Stepputat are Senior Researchers at the Danish Institute for International Studies. Steffen Jensen is Senior Researcher at the Rehabilitation and Research Centre for Torture Survivors and teaches International Development Studies at Roskilde University.

Re-thinking Sexualities in Africa

This volume sets out to critically investigate existing lines of thought about sexuality in Africa, while also creating space for alternative approaches. Issues of colonial and contemporary discourses on 'African sexuality' and on 'female genital mutilation' are discussed, as are issues of female agency and of feminist engagement with HIV/AIDS. The volume contributes to current efforts to re-think sexualities in the light of feminist, queer and postcolonial theory.

A must addition to social science collections in general and African studies in particular, this volume will be of great importance to professionals, graduate students, and advanced undergraduates.

Navigating Youth, Generating Adulthood
Social Becoming in an African Context

This book focuses on the lives and experiences of young people in Africa. On agents who, willingly or unwillingly, see themselves as belonging to the socio-generational category of youth and the ways in which they seek to shape and unfold their lives in a positive manner. Rather than seeing youth as either a social or cultural entity in itself, or as a predefined life-stage, the book argues for an exploration of how youth position themselves and are positioned within generational categories. In studying young people, social scientists must conceptualise youth as both social being and social becoming; a position in movement. It is from the duality of being positioned and seeking one's own socio-generational position that this book engages in the debate on contemporary African youth.

The chapters are based on ethnographic research across the African continent and provide in-depth analyses of the perceptions, positions, possibilities, and practices of diverse groups of young people.

CHUNG, FAY KING

Re-living the Second Chimurenga

Memories from Zimbabwe's Liberation Struggle

This retrospective offers a first hand account on internal conflicts in ZANU during the 1970s, which resulted in the defeat of its left wing. Chung's narratives include her experiences in two guerrilla camps. She recalls her encounters with the charismatic Josiah Tongogara, a legendary military commander during Zimbabwe's liberation war (known as the "second chimurenga"), who died at the threshold to Independence. The personal recollection of a transition to national sovereignty concludes with an incisive analysis of developments after Independence. It ends with Chung's vision for the Zimbabwe of the future.

Fay King Chung served within the Ministry of Education in post-colonial Zimbabwe for a total of fourteen years, at the end as the Minister of Education and Culture. Her autobiographical account has the childhood experiences in colonial Rhodesia as a point of departure. Like many other Zimbabwean intellectuals she joined the liberation struggle. From the mid-1970s she worked within the ZANU-organised educational sphere.

The Succession of Faure Gnassingbe to the Togolese Presidency

An International Law Perspective
Current African Issues No. 30 (E)

A critical element in the renewal of the African continent is the increasing and widespread democratic awakening in all parts of Africa since the early 1990s as evidenced by the number of multi-party elections. African leaders, under the auspices of regional organizations, have increasingly made a number of treaties, declarations and other political commitments in the field of democracy and good governance. Significantly, the recent politico-constitutional crisis in Togo, occasioned by the sudden death of President Gnassingbe Eyadema in early February 2005, raised issues of democracy and good governance and provided an opportunity for African countries to test the effectiveness of the various democracy-related instruments. Adopting a legal-jurisprudential perspective, the author skillfully examines the contradictions between the regional-international legal instruments that permit interference in the internal affairs of a Member State of ECOWAS and AU and the principles of international law that provide for sovereign equality of States and non-interference in the internal affairs of a sovereign State.

Chad – Towards Democratisation or Petro-Dictatorship?

Discussion Paper 29 (E)

This study provides a background of the socio-political situation in Chad and the oil project, and analyses how the two will develop and interact in the future. A key feature is an analysis of the incentives in the oil project and their possible future changes. Chad is currently undergoing two processes of significant importance for its future development – political democratisation and transformation into an oil economy. The oil export started in late 2003, and boosted the economy in 2004. To avoid the disastrous experiences of most poor African oil states, unique oil management, control mechanisms and other conditionalities have been imposed by the World Bank – much thanks to pressure from the civil society and the international community. If implemented well, Chad may become a model for how a poor resource-rich country is able to promote socio-economic development and poverty reduction.

Legacies of Power

Leadership Change and Former Presidents in African Politics

It was a widely dominant perception until the early 1990's that African rulers do not vacate their office alive. But even in the brutal reality of African politics, transition takes place and different former presidents have dealt with how to maintain power and privilege very differently. Presidential transitions pose a dilemma in handing over the power. Incumbent rulers often are confronted with the desire of the retired president not to leave politics. The chapters to this volume consequently pay special attention to the relationships evolving between the new regimes and their predecessors. The book stimulates careful further observation and analyses concerning progress in this contested arena of institutionalised political power in Africa. “An excellent, uniquely valuable addition to the literature, rich in detail and dealing with profoundly significant issues. The collection will be not only of immense interest to Africanists, but also of great relevance across a broad spectrum of research disciplines. AU, NEPAD and the APRM Democratisation Efforts Explored
Current African Issues No. 32 (E)
The African Union and the New Partnership for Africa's Development represent an unprecedented collective political effort by African governments at the beginning of the 21st century to address issues of democracy and good governance on a continental scale. The visible commitments to jointly tackle political and socioeconomic challenges are reflected in the adoption of a variety of programmatic blueprints and a series of newly created or recently strengthened institutions. The most visible of these since the integration of NEPAD into the AU is the African Peer Review Mechanism, a process aimed at addressing some of the challenges on the basis of a voluntary assessment of African government policies. The contributions to this publication trace these recent developments from a policy perspective and explore the scope and limitations of current democratisation efforts.

Beyond Territory and Scarcity

Exploring Conflicts over Natural Resource Management

The attainment of sound and sustainable environmental management is one of humanity's greatest challenges this century, particularly in Africa, which is still heavily dependent on the exploitation of natural and agricultural resources and is faced with rapid population growth. Yet, this challenge should not be reduced to Malthusian parameters and the simple question of population growth and failing resources. In this volume, ten anthropologists and geographers critically address traditional Malthusian discourses in essays that attempt to move “beyond territory and scarcity” The studies are drawn from a range of sub-Saharan African countries: Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ghana, Lesotho, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, and Sudan.

Women and the Remaking of Politics in Southern Africa

Negotiating Autonomy, Incorporation and Representation

African women have a long history of political involvement reaching back to anti-colonial struggles but often this was not acknowledged after independence, leaving them to fight the struggle for representation and personal liberation on other fronts. The study looks at these struggles in Southern Africa, analyses the post-colonial outcomes and examines the strategies that have been employed by women's movements to gain a foothold in politics. Extensive material from Southern Africa is compared and juxtaposed, as women politicians and women's movements learned from each other's experiences over time. The study also critically addresses the uneasy relationship between the women's movements and the state, and between women activists and women politicians as they have negotiated co-optation, integration and exclusion. The methods used for the study, and its historical and geographical scope, put it in a class of its own.

Advancing antiretroviral therapy in sub-Saharan Africa

Current African Issues No. 31 (E)

Advancing antiretroviral therapy in sub-Saharan Africa is based on two conferences that were held in September 2004.

The events brought together more than 70 key actors from Denmark, Sweden and Uganda in the field of HIV/AIDS and its treatment. The conferences were unique in that each panel and the subsequent discussion brought together researchers, donors and representatives from non-governmental organisations. The working paper covers a wide range: Access to antiretroviral therapy, Holistic approaches to providing antiretroviral therapy, prevention and support and Antiretroviral therapy and public health services.

How to Be a 'Proper' Woman in the Times of HIV and AIDS

Current African Issues No. 34 (E)

Instead of stepping high as development and academic experts, the authors of this publication identify with other women and how as Women make meaning of proper woman-ness, respectability and personhood in the face of HIV/AIDS politics. When is one social script of being a proper Woman valid and what invalidates it? What kind of changes and norms are implicitly or explicitly promoted through development interventions? Can sexuality be separated from material, social and political realities? Why are there so many contradicting messages and forces around ARV medicines? Why is there so much silence and so much noise at the same time around HIV/AIDS? Can HIV/AIDS be a force for inclusion rather than exclusion? Through the use of personal and reflexive dialogue between a Western policy maker and an African researcher the publication aims at encouraging others to do the same.

Youth and Urban Culture Celebrating Politics in Kenya
Discussion Paper 32 (E)

This discussion paper addresses the varied notions of culture, politics and youth music in the Kenyan context during former President Moi's presidency.

Moving away from the notion that youth activities can be equated with terror and acts of idleness, the author examines the historical centrality of music and politics in Kenya. Using imagery derived from proverbs as a basis of thinking, the author discusses the changing views of culture and identity among the youth of Kenya. To enhance the discussion, politics and the urban context serve as the basis for interrogating youth involvement through music in the political space in Kenya. Finally, the discussion presents the youth musician Eric Wainaina and discusses his use of music as an intervention into the issue of political decay and corruption. The underlying thrust of this discussion is to reflect upon and dispel the assumption that, through their music, youth in Kenya are engaged in violent activities against the state.

Rebels and Robbers

Violence in Post-Colonial Angola

Rebels and Robbers is about the political economy of violence in post-colonial Angola. This book provides the first comprehensive attempt at analyzing how the military and non-military dynamics of more than four decades of conflict created the structural violence that stubbornly defines Angolan society even in the absence of war. The focus on structural violence enables the author to explore the continuities since colonial times, especially in the ways race, class, ethnicity, and power have been used by governing elites as mechanisms to oppress the powerless. But the unabashed propensity to capture public resources for personal aggrandizement is purely post-colonial. Angola's opportunity to finally realize its developmental potential will depend on whether the wealth resulting from the exploration of natural resources is directed toward creating the conditions for the citizens' realization of their aspirations for the good life thus ensuring sustainable peace.

Diasporas Within and Without Africa

Dynamism, Heterogeneity, Variation

The book deals with two types of "African diasporas", the first of which originated in the migration histories of the Indian Ocean and brought new groups into Africa. This is illustrated by case studies of Hadrami communities in Sudan and Zanzibar, and the Malay community in Cape Town, that produced trade links as well as processes of Islamization. The second type originated with the failing African states and cases discussed are an Eritrean diaspora in Germany, alongside Sudanese diasporas in Norway and the USA, and a Somali diaspora in Norway. The papers deal with processes of homemaking, political mobilization in the diaspora through local organisations, religious networks and cyberspace nationalism. The central conceptual argument is that "diaspora" is not only a post-modern reaction to the xenophobia of Western nation states but must be seen as part of a broader history of human migration and intercultural experience. The book is valuable for researchers interested in African studies, from various disciplines such as anthropology, history and religious science as well as migration and diaspora studies and the broader field of cultural studies. It is also of use for practitioners in UN agencies and NGOs working with global migration, and also national immigration departments.

Societies and families are changing all over the world. Less of what the older generations transmit of their experiences can be replicated by the younger generations in their own lives. What we are witnessing is a type of cultural delinking from past generations.

This longitudinal study, made by the Reproductive Health Study Group linked to the University of Dar es Salaam focuses on the teenage girl and the erosion of the customs that had regulated marriage, parenthood and intergenerational obligations. It also discusses the generation gap and the ways in which this gap has widened over the past century.

Transitions in Namibia
Which Change for Whom?

A first volume on "Re-examining liberation in Namibia" (2003) concentrated on the political culture since Independence. This second collection of essays adds to the widely recognised and praised effort to critically assess the achievements and failures of the erstwhile German and South African colony under a liberation movement in political power. It complements the preceding collection by mainly assessing the material aspects of decolonisation and its limitations with reference to the empirical social realities. The contributors are scholars and civil society activists mainly based in Namibia or working extensively on and in the country. The chapters deal with legal aspects of the new system, the strategies of a new elite, the continued social disparities, forms of exploitation and marginalisation, land as a contested issue, the integration of ex-combatants, the role of youth, decentralisation and regional development, urban deprivation, HIV/Aids, gendered violence and other forms of discrimination.

It is thought-provoking when it comes to the necessary reflections on the limits to liberation and is of interest and use to scholars, activists and practitioners alike.

Trade, Development, Cooperation
What Future for Africa?

Current African Issues No. 29 (E) Bi- and multilateral trade relations between external actors and individual African states or regional blocs are becoming ever more decisive. The trade policies of both the USA and the EU are anything but helpful. These initiatives have a potentially detrimental impact on regional integration. The latter remains however a priority in the developmental policy and strategy documents as formulated both by African agencies as well as the partners in development cooperation in the OECD countries. Hence the question of coherence between trade as aid and other areas of development strategy and cooperation remains to be answered.

Education in Ethiopia
From Crisis to the Brink of Collapse
Discussion Paper 33 (E)

The main focus of this study is the deepening crisis of the Ethiopian education system. This study reconstructs the growth of the crisis of the sector during the last four decades. It then discusses the implications of the crisis in terms of communication breakdown; absence of analytical capacity at system level; the fragmentation of society; loss of political legitimacy and perpetuation of authoritarian power. Although the education sector has greatly expanded its impact on poverty alleviation has so far been insignificant. The poverty landscape has changed to the worse during the last fifty years. The study argues that it is only through language (readily understood and practised) that collective life and the world can be interpreted in an integrated manner. The replacement of English by Ethiopian languages all the way from the primary to tertiary levels is one of the factors that could strengthen the survival potential of the Ethiopian political community.

The Western Sahara Conflict
The Role of Natural Resources in Decolonization

Current African Issues No. 33 (E)

This publication gives a comprehensive background to the long-running conflict on the status of Western Sahara and particularly highlights the question of the territory's natural resources, such as fish, oil and phosphates. It analyses why this territory, mainly covered by desert and only sparsely populated, has since 1976, when the former colonial power Spain officially ceded the territory, engaged governments and people, both regionally and internationally, and the implications of its natural resources. The publication includes a summary of the Western Sahara conflict, an up-to-date picture of the situation in Western Sahara with regard to natural resources and the UN's legal opinion from 2002 on exploitation of the natural resources of a Non-Self-Governing Territory written by Hans Corell, former UN Under-Secretary-General for Legal Affairs, the Legal Counsel. These contributions form a useful information source for policymakers, researchers, students and activists interested in or dealing with issues related to the Maghreb framework and in particular the Western Sahara conflict.

Claes Olsson has a degree in Social Sciences. He is the author of several books and articles on the Western Sahara issue.

Skinning The Skunk Facing Zimbabwean Futures

Discussion Paper No. 30 (E)

"Skinning the Skunk" refers to a saying in Shona, "kuvhiya kadembo". The Zimbabwean writer Stanley Namfukudza uses it here to illustrate how important problems, like the legacy of violence, are avoided in Zimbabwean public discussion.

Terence Ranger writes on the new policy of rewriting the history of Zimbabwe, in the name of "patriotic history", through which the Zanu-PF government tries to assert hegemony and achieve "a total change of the mindset". To talk about Zimbabwe today also means to talk of the large diaspora. Beacon Mbiba presents a study on what is colloquially called "Harare North", that is London (and the rest of the UK).

Mai Palmberg works at the Nordic Africa Institute in Uppsala as Coordinator of a research and network project "Cultural Images in and of Africa". Ranka Primorac has degrees from the Universities of Zagreb, Harare and Nottingham Trent.

Guerrilla Government

Political Changes in the Southern Sudan during the 1990s

This volume analyses the main events leading up to the SPLM/A's current position of supremacy. The book consists of three chronologically ordered, integrated parts, where the first part discusses the effect of the split in 1991 and the movements political and administrative structures prior to its National Convention in 1994. This is discussed in the second part. Finally, the book analyses the significance of the Convention and its reforms in the light of later attempts at implementation when, in the last part of the 1990s, political paralysis set in as the Movement experienced unprecedented military success. The discussion is brought to a conclusion with a brief summary of events during the period 2000–2004 and presents some thoughts on the future government of the south Sudan.

Øystein H. Rolandsen is the Horn of Africa Adviser at the Norwegian People's Aid and board member of the Norwegian Sudan Support Group.

This important and original study of the SPLM/A, taking as its principal reference point the National Convention of 1994, does much to clarify these issues in Southern Sudan, and provides a valuable case study of 'guerrilla government' that will be of much wider relevance.

Micro-Regionalism in West Africa

Evidence from Two Case Studies
Discussion Paper 34

This collection seeks to complement and advance recent studies on regionalism in Africa and the implications that this has for the continent's development. The two case studies on cross-border micro-regionalism in the borderlands of Mali-Burkina Faso and Niger-Nigeria are part of the work of the West Africa Border Initiative (WABI). Providing a challenge to the considerable number of state-centric, formalistic and not seldom overly idealistic studies in this field, the two cases show quite clearly that formal borders either essentially do not exist in the Westphalian sense, being ignored by local populations and traders, or, are strategically used by (often self-styled) representatives of the state to extract resources and rents.

African Families in a Global Context

Research Report No. 131 (E)

The family is one of the most important institutions of African societies. Where is it going today? How is it affected by global processes, cultural and political as well as economic? How does it compare with family developments in other parts of the world? These are questions which this book addresses. The contributors deal with the African family in a comparative global context, focusing on patriarchy, sexuality and marriage, and fertility; biological and social reproduction in Ghana under conditions of globalization and structural adjustment; Nigerian marriage relations under the impact of current conditions and; family changes in the North (Britain) from a family perspective of the South (South Africa).

History Making and Present Day Politics

The meaning of collective memory in South Africa

In this collection, some of South Africa's most distinguished historians and social scientists present their views on the importance of history and heritage for the transformation of the South African society. Although popular use of history helped remove apartheid, the study of history lost status during the transition process. Some of the reasons for this, like the nature of the negotiated revolution, social demobilisation, and individualisation, are analysed in this book.

The combination of scholarly work with an active role in changing society has been a central concern in South African history writing. This book warns against the danger of history being caught between reconciliation, commercialisation, and political correctness.

The authors also examine a range of new government and private initiatives in the practical use of history, including the establishment of new historical entertainment parks and the conversion of museums and heritage sites.

DAVIDSON, BASIL

Afrika i det tjugonde seklet Afrikabiblioteket nr 6

En ny omarbetad och uppdaterad upplaga av 1991 års "Afrika i det tjugonde seklet" (Afrikabiblioteket nr 2). Afrikas historia förs här ända fram till 1999. Boken utgör en insiktsfull och lättillgänglig presentation av Afrika under det senaste seklet.

Basil Davidson diskuterar orsakerna till de afrikanska ländernas kris. Han tar också itu med de rika ländernas upprepade underlåtenhet att förändra förhållandet mellan länderna i nord och de fattiga i syd. Boken avslutas med en diskussion om hur Afrika söker sina egna lösningar. Sakregister, kartor, kronologisk översikt och studiefrågor gör boken lämpad i undervisning.

Afrikabild för partnerskap? Afrika i de svenska skolböckerna

Mot bakgrund av införandet av begreppet "partnerskap" i svensk biståndspolitik har författaren till denna studie granskat hur Afrika framställs i 62 aktuella högstadietexter i SO-ämnen. Skolböckerna har en stor betydelse som formare av vår världsbild och som återspeglare av tidsandan, men undgår vanligtvis all kritisk granskning. Denna bok ger både ris och ros. Den varnar för generaliseringar och föreslår kompletterande material som kan göra Afrikabilden mer levande och intressant.

Att studera Afrika Vägar till källorna (E)

Denna bok är en guide till Afrikastudier inom främst det samhällsvetenskapliga området. Både tryckta och Internet-baserade källor behandlas i denna nya, grundligt uppdaterade upplaga. Boken ger praktisk vägledning till handböcker, databaser, kartor, statistik och en rad andra hjälpmedel för litteratur- och faktasökning. Dessutom finns fylliga introduktioner till litteraturen inom några för Afrikastudier centrala ämnesområden: politik, ekonomi, historia, antropologi, geografi och utbildningsfrågor. I första hand riktar sig boken till studerande och forskare, men även lärare, journalister och bibliotekarier med flera har nytta av den.

"Äntligen! ..... den fulländade guiden till information om Afrika. I fullmatade artiklar av ledande forskare får jag information om det mesta av den bästa litteraturen. Värderat och värdefullt vetande, vettigt uppställt, alltså lätt att hitta."

(Lasse Berg, författare)

"Att studera Afrika ger en överdärlig översikt av olika typer av informationskällor om Afrika .... ett oundgängligt verktyg för både forskare, studenter, lärare, journalister, tjänstemän och andra som yrkesmässigt arbetar med Afrika - likväl som för aktivister och allmänhet som är intresserad av att följa den dynamiska utvecklingen på kontinenten."

Bistånd på utvecklingens villkor

Synen på biståndet har genomgått stora förändringar under de senaste 20 åren. 70-talets utvecklingsoptimism följdes av 80-talets djupa kris, med en pessimistisk framtidssyn. 90-talet innebar en tillnyktring och omfattande arbete har lagts ner på att dra slutsatser av erfarenheterna. Denna antologi presenterar biståndets teori och teknik i ljuset av de senaste årens utveckling. Boken är en uppföljning av "Bistånd på mottagarens villkor" som gavs ut 1974.
